"ROZZUM HAS RIZ." The Way in Which Unscrupulous Dealers

Tried to Raise Prices.

There was once an estimable old colored gentlemap who eked out a somewhat precarious livelihood by playing the fiddle for dancing parties. His charge for many years had been $2 a night, but as the in-firmities of age grew upon him and cut off other sources of revenue he concluded to even things up by increasing the price for his musical services to $4 a night. When asked a reason for this he hesitated somewhat, but finally said: "De fact is, rozzum

The new tariff increases the duty on tinplate from 1 cent a pound to 2.2 cents. The free-trade organs tell us this will double the price of tin-ware. The wholesale price of three-quart coffee pots, as shown in October price lists, was $1.10 a dozen, a trifle over 9 cents each. Their weight is one and a quarter pound each. If the increased duty is added to the price, these coffee pots will cost 1012 cents each instead of 9 cents each, at wholesale. They sell at retail at 25 cents. Coffee pots will be dearer, the free-traders say. Why? Because "Rozzum

"The wholesale price of 1C four-quart milk-pans, weighing half a pound each, was quoted at 42 cents a dozen on Oct. 1 or 312 cents each. If the increased duty is added to the cost the duty will be a trifle over 4 cents each. They sell at retail for 13 cents each. Milk-pans, the free-traders say, will be dearer. Why? Because "Rozzum has riz." The new tariff increases the duty on cotton velvet. Low-grade cotton velvets, twenty-five inches wide, cost 12 cents a yard in Europe. The duty is now 1412 cents a yard, an increase of 8 cents. These velvets sell at retail for 60 to 70 cents a yard. The New York importers, who have been

er. Whyf because "Rozzum has riz." The new tariff on cheap jackknives is 117 per cent. The cheapest jackknives import-ed cost 18 cents a dozen, or 112 cent each, in Europe! The duty was 34 of a cent each. The new duty is 114 cent each. These knives sell for 20 to 25 cents each at retail. The Eastern importers, who have been making from 400 to 500 per cept. profit on these goods, say that cheap knives must go up. Why? Because "Rozzum has riz." And so it is in nine cases out of ten with the few articles on which the tariff has been increased. The actual increase on each article, measured in cents, is so small that the dealers will advertise, as many of them are doing in this paper, that there will be no increase to the consumer. The howl that the New York importers and free-trade organs are making about higher prices has for its foundation, so far as the tariff is concerned, nothing stronger than the allegation that "Rozzum has riz."

THE WINDOW-GLASS-WORKERS. Major McKinley and the Republican Party Thanked for Their Efforts.

At the regular meeting of L. A. 300, Window-glass-workers, the following preamble and resolutions were passed by unanimous

To the Officers and Members of L. A. 300, K. of L.: Whereas, We, the window-glass-workers of America, do believe that the measure passed in the late session of the Fifty-first Congress of the United States, known as the Mckinley bill, has been of great benefit to the industrial interests of the country; and Whereas. We realize that its passage was accomplished by the strenuous efforts of such members of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States as recognized the right of the workers-the voters-to claim the redemption of predges made by political par-ties during a political campaign, and which are too often totally ignored when the contest is deided; and realizing further, that to its author.

Major William McKinley, M. C., is due, above all others, the credit for the benefits that have and are to accrue to American labor through this legislation; be it, therefore Resolved. That we do hereby express ou hearty approval of the McKinley bill, believing that it has vouchsafed to us continued and in creased prosperity in the trades at which we are employed, and we do commend the true, manly inciples which prompted its author, Major Me-Kiuley, to so earnestly, untiringly and effectively strive for the redemption of those pledges which his party had made to the workingmen of America, and to secure for their benefit protection to American industries, thereby reviving i the breasts of the toilers the hope that successful political parties may yet be brought to recognize the right of the voter to claim the keeping of promises made to secure election to power. And, further, we call on all workingmen to remember that in the light of past experience that the only hope for progress and prosperity lies in their keeping careful guard of their own interests, and we suggest to them that this can best be done by strenuously insisting on having their rights respected by the law-makers of the Nation, and this can most effectively be done by supporting for office only such men as show a disposition to keep faith with them. And, furial, without Mckinley to be careful to see that every man who has the interests of labor at heart, and respect for true manliness, lends his hearty support to and casts his ballot for the return of Major McKinley to Congress, and thereby serve notice on politicians and political parties that labor is appreciative of a man who will respect its rights. Let this be done irre-spective of party ties, and we will have paved the way to fairer treatment and real representa-

A FEW EXTRAS FOR TAGGART

Willing Commissioners Make Him Al lowances Not Provided for by Law.

The Salary and Fees He Is Loath to Surrender -Republicans Working with Confidence to Elect Their Tickets-Notes.

The county auditor has, in addition to hi salary, several sources of income provided by law. The salary in such an office like that in Marion county amounts to enough in the course of a year to keep one from starving. It is based upon population, $100 for each 1,000 people over 20,000; and thus for the past ten years the Marion county auditor has been drawing on that account alone $843.75 a month, or $10,125 a year. For the first 20,000 population he is paid a stipulated sum. From other legal sources, like those of fees for liquor licenses, transfers of real estates, caring for the school fund, noting assignments, filing papers, for which I cent each is allowed, making certificates of tax sales and school fund mortgages he is further enriched. The new census will increase the salary figures to nearly $14,000 a year. With the County Commissioners susceptible to the persuasive appeals of the auditor allo wances can be made to put him vorable circumstance that has attended County Auditor Taggart since he has been in office. He has had frequent claims submitted to the commissioners that do not come within the pale of the law, but as the board takes the responsibility it is, perhaps, not the auditor's lookout except to get his money as quickly as possible. Among the allowances within the last two years and a half that can come under the ban of the tax-payers' protest are the following: Fil ing blanks and making plats, preparing claim record, indexing allowances, placing number of residences on tax duplicate, filing papers not specified as coming within the law, duties in elections, descriptions of improvements, indexing and claim record. making plats and indexing commissioners

As an illustration of how Mr. Taggarthas been favored in this respect by the Democratic County Commissioners, there is an item of $182,85 allowed in 1888 for duties in election. It is not a great amount, but as the duties consist altogether in qualifying inspectors and supplying them with election blanks already paid for by the county, it is a comfortable sum for comparatively little work. Mr. Taggart in the same year was paid on the order of the commissioners 675.64 for "description of improvements." The character of this work is not very clear, as the title of the claim is all there is to indicate why the auditor called for the allowance. Not long afterward he got through the same willing board $466.67 in two items for doing what he called "indexing and preparing claim record." But he had another pull on the treasury when his bills three times presented for filing papers were approved. These three claims amounted in all to $746.30. Of this sum $240.50 was indicated as being for filing tax certificates. As the auditor is legally entitled to fees for making such certificate the tax-payers would like to know the reason for this extra amount in filing the papers described. For making plats the thrifty Taggart got several hundred more dollars-to be accurate, $275.60-in 1888 alone, and the amount was allowed in three installments.

The following year these extras were no so numerous, but the auditor did not allow the commissioners' records to go without memeranda that he had been allowed something. For "indexing," straight and simple, it is presumed, for there is nothing more to distinguish the work, he $488.20. For more plats drew $270.35, and for making descriptions, but what kind the record does not state he was paid $195.53. While the year before he obtained $2,347 through the favor of the commissioners for which there is no law, he got but $1,566.95 in the year following. An item of $612.87 was among the allowances, and this was for "filing blanks and indexing the commissioners' record." Since the beginning of the county's fiscal year last November Mr. Taggart's arduous work in making plats called for $679.16. Then there came in $205 for "claim record" again. "Index allowances," too, appear calling for $195. Filing papers was not overlooked, as Taggart was again paid $261.85 for that service. But to cap the climax of these favors from the Democratic County Commissioners, $300 was handed over to the smiling Taggart for placing numbers of residences on the tax duplicate. In addition to his salary and fees specified by law Mr. Taggart has received in two years and eleven months $5,555.02 not specified by law. It is time for the tax-payers to turn out, not only the rich Taggart, but the subservient County Commissioners.

Reports continue to reach Republican making 100 per cent. profit or more on the | headquarters with the assurance of configoods, say that cotton velvets will be dear- dence in the successful outcome of next cidentally that we would bolt any way if Tnesday's election. There has been no campaign in which observers express their opinion with so little reservation or doubt as in this. It seems to be generally accepted that the Democrats, to avert disasmust do something at once, there is an apathy in their ranks that means anything but the fulfillment of boastful claims as to majority put forth by their leaders. One of these leaders yesterday was apparently well satisfied with what he saw ahead, but he spoiled the effect of his exulting assertions by admitting there is a "seeming apathy" among the Democrats. It is not necessary to give his name, as he talked with the same boastfulness four years ago on the eve of the election when he had immediate charge of the Democratic State central committee, while Eb Henderson was its chairman. It is also due to his wish not to have his name mentioned to state that he claims to be out of politics. It has been the Democratic policy, the last two or three weeks, not to make converts, but to keep what voters the party has in line. The managers have about as much as they can do in that direction, as those who form their rank and file sit about the country stores announcing their determination not to vote and condemning the election law. Again, efforts to put the legislative ticket ahead of State and county tickets have caused confusion and indignation. With this state of demoralization to make the party ineffective along came the horrible tragedy at the Richmond Insane Hospital to bring the Democrats before public opinion. Republican speakers say the least allusion to that inhuman occurrence arcuses

the indignation of their auditors. Senator Boyd was speaking to a large crowd in one of the towns of Morgan couny. Tuesday night, and in arraigning the Democratic party for its many years of mismanagement of the State benevolent institutions, saved the Richmond tragedy for his climax. He read to his audience the Journal's report of that terrible event, and in an instant the audience was moved to expressions of most intense feeling against men responsible for the murder of the helpless patient Blount. This is but one many similar instances have occurred since the details of the horror reached the public. W. P. Fishback, who has been speaking in many parts of the State, has made the partisan management of these institutions and the long list of abuses and corruption resulting from it the burden of his speeches. The people, he says, pay the keenest attention to that issue, as it reaches thousands of families in the State. For there is hardly a place from the lake to the Ohio river and from the western to the eastern boundaries of Indiana that has not one or more inmates in the insane hospitals and the asylums for the blind and deaf and dumb.

Another matter that has taken hold of the people is the enormous debt of the State. Democratic speakers, taking their Resolved, That we appeal to the constituents | cue from ex-Governor Gray, have not been able to explain away the reason for Democratic extravagance in appropriations. The farmers especially are figuring on this great imposition, and the effect has been to turn the run of propitions events decidedly in favor of a change in the legislative majority. These things have given the Republicans great encouragement, and that encouragement has brought the party into a very aggressive form from one end of the opinion, and base their expectations upon the effective manner in which the State issues have been brought to the front and the letters they receive from all parts of the State. The only thing to be done is to have every Republican vote.

The railroad friends of Mr. Browning, and they are thousands, want Taggart, his competitor, who is trading against the rest of the Democratic ticket to save himself, to answer the following: It has been charged by the friends of Taggart that John W. Browning had "scabbed." Do Mr. Taggart's friends know what it takes to constitute a scab! If they don't, let them call on Boss Taggart, and he will tell them how he fed and bedded them in the year of 1888 and gave them police protection. Now, admitting John W. Browning did go out on a run, as charged by Taggart and his friends, he knew nothing of the conductors asking for more pay, and went out on the message, "J. W. Browning, come to La-fayette and I will give you a regular run. G. W. H." Replying, Mr. Browning said: "G. W H. Will to-morrow do? Just got home from N. Y. Dec. 12, 1886." But when he learned the facts of the conductors' appeal he quit. That is what any honorable man would have done. Again, there was no strike as the O. R. C. conductors could not strike, and could not even wait on Mr. Browning or any other man to notify him that they asked for more pay and, not receiving, quit Browning, on learning the conductors had asked for more pay, had honor enough to wire the trainmaster to relieve him, which was done, and e did not take a place again for some time quitting a $92 per month job to give the old conductor his place again. Where is there an-other man who would have done this! Would his opponent have done so! Let him answer. But Browning, who is charged with "scabbing" by Taggart, who feeds the scabs and protects them, now asks the people to believe his one-legged triend, John W. Browning, had scabbed during a strike which never took place or could not have taken place at the time charged. It is simply a political lie to defeat a man who never scabbed or even helped a workman of that character, let alone feeding and protecting them. Take your choice of the two men. One feeds scabs and gives them police protection and the other has always been the railroad and laboring man's friend. Which is the worse! G. O. HOWE, TOM BAKER, R. MONTFORT. RROSE HOLLIS,

The county central committee has arranged for a meeting Saturday night at the Grand Opera-house to make the close of a very successful series of meetings held in the county and city the past few weeks. C. W. Fairbanks will then speak on the general issues affecting State interests that have entered into the campaign, and D. F. Kennedy, the stone-cutter and representative of organized labor, will appeal especially to that class. To-night a meeting will be held at Slinkard's Hall, West Indianapolis, where Geo. H. Thebe, D. F. Kennedy, A. C. Cosner and Abram J. Mankin will speak. This is to be distinctively a labor meeting. At Irvington Dr. Levi Ritter is to speak this evening, and at Germania Hall, corner Market and Noble, John L. McMaster is to address the people. At Kroeckel's Hall, corner of Morris and Illinois streets. ex-Lieut.-Gov. Thomas Hanns and Wm. V Herod are to be the speakers. New Bethel, ranklin township, is to be visited to-night by John J. W. Billingsley, and the Republicans of the Sixth ward will meet in Bacon's Block, on Fort Wayne avenue. At Nora, Washington township, Charles L. Holstein and Charles W. Moores will be the speakers, and to Millersville, Washington township, Caleb S. Denny is assigned. To-morrow evening there will be a meeting at Clermont, Wayne township, with Caleb S. Denny as speaker, and at No. 14 school-house, east of Bridgeport, on National road, where Dr. Levi Ritter is to Frank I. Grubbs, one of the Republican candidates for the Legislature, came to this city from Knightstown about eight years ago. He is a thorough, practical printer, and has held first-class positions on various newspapers of this city, and holds a situation on one of them at present. During his residence here, as elsewhere, he has been an active and honored member of the Typokraphical Union. He has been a member of all the important committees of Indianapolis Union, No. 1, served one term as its president, and was elected delegate to represent No. 1 at the recent convention of the International Union at Atlanta, Ga., which duty he performed with bonor and credit to his union and himself. He is a gentleman of exemplary habits, and his character for honorsble dealing is above reproach. A circular derogatory to Mr. Grubbs, purporting to have been issued by a coterie of printers styling themselves a committee of organized labor, appeared yesterday. His host of friends in the craft are highly indignant at this attempt to aid in his defeat, and they will be heard from through the papers Saturday morning and evening.

In some way politics appear to have got into the State University at Bloomington, as the following extract from a letter written by a student to his friends in this city would indicate: "On Wednesday, in the afternoon, General Raum spoke here. Every one in the law class wanted to hear him. We asked to be excused, stating innot excused. So the professor agreed with B- who is a Democrat of the most virulent type, to dismiss us providing we were also when he comes here. Of course none of us day off. Raum's speech was a strong one, though he never once referred to Cooper. Albert J. Beveridge, who spoke here, described the Democratic party as 'an organized groan' and said that Cleveland was a theory, Gray a condition and Green Smith a sand-bag. If the Republicans gain in the northern part of the State as they will in the southern there will be no doubt of the Democracy in this part of the State."

Chairman Jewett, of the Democratic State central committee, evidently is not satisfied with the way the campaign is moving. "The report," said he to a News reporter yesterday, "that the Democratic congressional committee at Washington has sent us a large sum of money to be used in close districts is utterly false. The truth is, that committee has done nothing but discredit us in this campaign. We wrote it to send us certain speeches on the tariff and other questions for campaign literature, but it did not do anything for us. Recently it publicly announced that the Democratic party expected to lose three Congressmen in Indiana at this election. That was an encouraging thing tor us, hard at work out here, wasn't it? It is true that in 1888 we elected three Congressmen just by a scratch, and there will be nothing to be surprised at which ever party. succeeds in those districts this time. But we are hopeful of carrying all three of that we will.'

them again, and have many assurances The colored voters have determined that their fealty to the Republican party shall be no longer questioned by Democrats who have sought to break their solid front. As an evidence of their straight-out Republicanism no better need be asked than the enthusiasm expressed at the meeting at the Tabernacle, No. 127 Rhode Island street, Wednesday evening. The room was crowded to its limits, the audience numbering about four hundred. Telling speeches were made by Dr. Elbert, W. W. Christy, George Knox, Jacob Franklin and Rev. J. M. Morton. Each speaker was most heartily applauded, and, although it was after midnight when the meeting closed, the large crowd remained to the last. When an expression by standing up was called for from every man who would support the Republican ticket, not one in the meeting failed to show his purpose in so doing.

Another rousing meeting was held last night in Antioch Baptist Church, corner of Fourth and Howard streets. The church was packed and intense enthusiasm developed. Speeches were made by the Rev. J. M. Morton, Gabriel Jones, Dr. Elbert, Ja-cob Franklin and W. W. Christy. General expression of support for the straight Republican ticket was a feature of the meet-

HUNTER-BLANCHARD. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. NEW ALBANY, Ind., Oct. 30 .- New Albany has seldom witnessed a more beautiful wedding than the Hunter-Blanchard marriage, which took place at half-past 8 o'clock, last night, at Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church. The contracting parties were Dr. William George Hunter, a prominent oildealer, of Pittsburg, Pa., and Louise C. Blanchard, a young lady popular in society, as well as a member of one of New Albany's oldest and most respected families. Trinity M. E. Church, in all its freshness and beauty-this being the first wedding solemnized within its walls since its dedication-was opened to receive the bridal party. The altar was decked with palms and ferns, and that old, old melody, the Wedding March, lost no harmony in being rendered from Trinity's new organ. The bridal ceremony was performed by Rev. J. E. Steele, of Centenary M. E. Church, assisted by Rev. H. T. Talbett, pastor of Trinity Church. Miss Blanchard was attired in white rep silk, en train, trimmed with point lace and orange blossoms. Miss Evalyn Austin, of Indianapo-lis, cousin of the bride, as maid of honor, wore white silk, with ostrich-feather trimming. Mr. McMullen, of Pittsburg, was the groom's best man. Four brides-maids, attended by four ushers, entered the chancel and grouped themselves behind the officiating ministers, the bridal couple presenting themselves before the altar-railing. The brides-maids were robed in colors, in Empire gowns, and made s very effective background for the conventional bridal white. Miss Willie Truman. Louisville, in blue silk, and Miss Blanche Culbertson, New Albany, in yellow silk, carried bouquets of Marcchal Niel roses; Miss Kate Reincking, New Albany, in pink silk, and Miss Mamie Clarke, New Albany, in gas-light green silk, carried La France oses. The ushers were Messrs. Segmon, of Indianapolis; Graves, of Evansville; Carroll and Offutt, of Louisvill, eand S. B. Kerr and Chas, McCord, New Albany. At the conclusion of the ceremony the orides-maids knelt and chanted the Lord's Prayer in concert. Following the wedding the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. Woodbury, to receive the congratulations of triends and partake of refreshments. The presents were numerous and handsome, that of the groom to the bride being a costly set of diamonds. The newly-wedded pair left at a late hour for Cincinnati.

PICKINGS FROM THE POLICE.

Offenses That Brought Several Persons to the Attention of Officers and Under Arrest.

Detectives Page and Quigley yesterday learned where a lot of brass and lead fixtures of the Mount Jackson distillery. valued at several hundred dollars, were buried on the river bank, and a search resulted in finding the material. Frank Denny, William Abraham and Otto Wilson were arrested on a charge of stealing it. R. H. Scott, manager of the Morton Lumber Company, with an office in the Martindale Block, has been missing since Monday. He paid reut for his office, his hotel bill at the Sherman House, and a bill for a suit of clothes at the When with checks on the Commercial Bank. It was discovered that no money was depesited there to make them good, and it was this fact that led to the discovery of his disappearance.

Daniel Lynch and Alba Griffin were arrested yesterday by Chief Splann and detective Quigley. The former is charged with stealing a gold watch from a young man at the Y. M. C. A. Park last August, and the latter with receiving the property. The prisoners are boys who spent a great deal of time at the park, where several other watches were stolen. Fred Syrup, appointed as a Democratic election sheriff, was yesterday found in a beastly state of intoxication on Indiana avenue and was arrested by patrolman Ronecker. Syrup was very proud of the badge of his fleeting authority.

Horace Revels, colored, was arrested by patrolmen Hostetter and Manning a few nights since on a charge of being a known thief. He had attempted, it is said, to rob a drunken man the night before, and detective Thornton secured evidence supporting a charge of his having stolen an overcoat from Ralston Brothers. Yesterday the detective rearrested Revels on a charge of grand larceny.

SPEAKER REED "DEAD BROKE." The Alleged Czar Arrives in Chicago Minus His Pocket-Book.

It has just leaked out that there was quite a funny story connected with Speaker Reed's arrival in the city last week. The alleged Czar came just as plain Tom Reed would have come. He carried his own grip as he left the train, and thought it no offense to his official dignity for other passengers to crowd him in the rush of de-

As he stood on the platform at the Wisconsin Central depot he was the best natured and least concerned of the passengers. No one suspected him of being a poor and penniless Czar, for no one knew that Mr. Reed had lost his money as he took the train at Waterloo, Ia., Thursday night. He did not charge it to pickpockets, but regarded the jucident as one of those mistakes when a man thinks he puts his money in his vest pocket and drops it. He discovered the mistake when he met the Pullman conductor and offered to exchange a $2 bill for a berth. He couldn't find the $2 bill. He couldn't find any money in his pocket, and a Pullman conductor is not a good man on whom to practice with sight drafts or bank checks. These are not negotiable with the despot who rules over the Pullman section of the railroad train. Mr. Reed realized this, and stood quietly in the car employing both bands in a systematic exploration of his pockets in search of the missing roll. He was not satisfied with once going over the ground. He began with the vest pockets and came back to them several times in succession, and at the beginning of each turn the smile on his face broadened as he realized that he was in a sleeping car without money.

How could even a Czar win the confidence of a porter under such circumstances? He might as well step down from his throne at once, for not even a Democratic editor would fear a Czar who had lost his purse. The Speaker of the greatest parliamentary body in the world laughed as he admitted that in the prohibition State of Iowa he had gone broke and found himself in the condition of the man who was offered the the State of Texas for a pair of boots, but adn't the boots.

not considered in any of his speeches on the | get their money back. admitted that a deficit was more difficult to handle than a surplus. For once he wished himself a Democrat just to know what to do under the circumstances, as the Democratic party has had experience in deficits and are always growling about the surplus. An acquaintance who had been watching this little comedy laughed to himself as he offered to act as banker, and Mr Reed came to Chicago a penniless Czar.

PENSIONS FOR TEACHERS.

A Fund to Be Raised in Philadelphia for the Care of the Incapacitated. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Philadelphia's public school teachers yesterday organized themselves into an association known as the Teachers' Annuity and Aid Society of Philadelphia, that will provide for its members in their old age by retiring them with a pension, and will also aid those who become sick or disabled and defray their funeral expenses. Over 1,100 teachers have pledged themselves in writing to enter the association, and nearly five hundred attended the meeting yesterday afternoon, in the Central High-school, at which the constitution of the new society was adopted. The fair sex largely predominated, and the gray hairs of many in the assembly attested their experience and length of service. Wm. H. Samuel, the veteran principal of the Hart Grammar School, presided, and Miss Mary Maxwell, of the Kinggold School, acted as secretary. The object of the meeting was briefly explained by the chairman, The movement is the outcome of the effort begun by the alumna association of the Girls' Normal School some two years ago. It was not, however, until June last that delegates from the alumnæ association and Teachers' Beneficial Association met to consider the organization of the new society: In the meantime $15,000 had been collected, as a fund for aged teachers, by the alumnæ association. For the present, however, this will remain with its collectors, to be used for the benefit of teachers who do not join the new organization. Prof. W. Henry Parker, of the Ringgold School, reported the constitution formed by the committee intrusted with the work, which was adopted after a long and spirited discussion and several amendments. Superintendents and teachers employed in the public schools of the First school district of Pennsylvania alone are eligible to membership. Dues are assessed on each amounting to 2 per cent. of the salary of the teachers receiving under $1,000, and 1 per cent. of each additional $100 of salary received. Retirement on an annuity of 60 per cent. of salary is provided for after thirty-five years of service for women and forty years for men.

A permanent fund is to be formed, onehalf of the dues being laid aside for this purpose until the fund amounts to $50,000; all donations and legacies will go into this fund, the principal of which must remain untouched. The remaining receipts form the annuity fund. On the death of any ember 5100 will be paid and the regula annuity to any one who becomes temporarily incapacitated for duty.

BISMARCK'S LOSS OF POPULARITY. some of the Causes of It as Learned by an American in Germany.

New York Tribune. "The most curious thing I saw," said Chauncey M. Depew on his return from Europe in September, "was the change which has occurred in Germany with reference to Bismarck. Three years ago he was the one great figure of Europe. To-day there are few so poor as to do him reverence." An indication of this alteration of sentiment is the large sale in Germany of a little trick which is intended to belittle the ex-Chancellor. It is a porcelain saucer, on the inside of which, near the rim is the question: "Wo ist Bismarck!" "Where is Bismarck!" The apparent answer is that he is nowhere, for the surface of the saucer seems to be perfectly plain. One who is not in the secret turns the toy over and over again, but fails to find the solution of the puzzle. The answer to the question is found by rubbing with a lead pencil the inside of the saucer until it is entirely black, when the features of the Prince appear. When the graphite is wiped off the picture disappears. A few years ago the maker or seller of such a toy would be severely dealt with, but now the joke is laughed at by pretty much the entire nation.

Perhaps it was one of those who are still oyal in their devotion to Bismarck who put on the market a plaything just like the one described, except that Chancellor Von Caprivi's name and face replace those of his predecessor. The second toy has not, however, had anything like the sale of its pro-totye. Looked at seriously these jokes teach the moral that if Bismarck is no longer in a commanding position Von Caprivi has by no means succeeded to his former eminence, and that the young Emperor occupies the pinnacle alone now. Many Americans besides Mr. Depew who were in Germany last summer felt a curiosity concerning the place that the ex-Chancellor occupies in the affections of the German people and inquired about it. Said one of those who had asked a number of Germans about the apparently sudden revulsion of feeling with regard to Bis-

"I learned that it was not merely national ingratitude, nor yet the sympathy which naturally goes out to the upper dog in the fight. The ex-Chancellor undoubtedly reaped much unpopularity on account of the great increase of taxation which laid to his door. Bismarck had always represented the government so completely that he became identified with it and received the blame for the heavy cost of the army. Taxes have increased steadily, and the army has swallowed up the services of more and more young men. Bismarck has amassed a large fortune, being the owner of several big estates, and it is believed by many that he caused taxes to be levied in a way that would bear hardest on the common people and lightest on the rich men like him-

"It is a curious fact that Emperor William is looked on by a large part of the masof people as the deliverer of Germany from Bismarck's heavy taxation. Yet the Eur peror is strongly in favor of increasing th. size of the army and of greatly strengthening the navy. All this will take moneymillions of it-yet William is looked on as the friend of the people.

The Great "Agin" Party Favors Nothing.

The Democrats are not satisfied with reciprocity now they have it. They complain that they wanted the pure Blaine brand and they got that with the Aldrich trademark. However, Mr. Blaine is pleased with the article, because it will open the markets of South America to thousands of bushels of wheat and barrels of flour.
